Tell me, sir: Do you have any actual proof that it is in fact Youtube, and not Google, who actually hosts the images, in spite of what Youtube themselves directly told me?

Can you please respond substantively to this question?

I haven't heard back from you in a while. Does this mean that you concede that my latest correspondence proves that Google was indeed the correct entity?

Then how do you explain the fact that Youtube outright told me to go to Google for the DMCA?

You didn't submit it to the correct entity. You can't go to Walmart to return something you bought at target

So you're saying my DMCA takedown was statutorily noncompliant? If so, can you please tell me which of the six things required by 17 USC § 512(c)(3)(A)(i)-(vi) that my takedown request doesn't contain?

Just advice to point out what might be that problem based on previous experiences with Google searches you tube etc.

If filled correctly they usually remove because it's all artificial intelligence that does these task very rarely do humans handle these requests

Are you an attorney? I checked your email's domain name - millernt.com/ - and it didn't load any webpage.

Who are you? And what claim are you referring to? My CCB claim?

1. Since your you tube is posting the video you have to file a dmca with you tube

These are two separate entities (companies)

2. If you are claiming the google is giving this video in the search result then that is a different issue.
3. I saw you have to serve them, you have to contact a process served that served in the zip code you provided.

Good luck
